About the Trans Rights Europe Map & Index

The Trans Rights Europe Map reflects the requirement for a mental health diagnosis in gender recognition procedures in Europe. The Trans Rights Europe Index provides detailed country information in 25 legal categories, such as legal gender recognition, asylum, bias speech/ violence, non-discrimination, health and family.

Using a simple format, the Trans Rights Europe Map & Index do not claim to reflect the complex social situations trans people face.

Mental Health Diagnosis Requirement

34 countries in Europe require a mental health diagnosis before adapting identity documents.

Such a requirement violates the right of every person to self-determine their gender identity. A mandatory diagnosis further drives stigma, exclusion and discrimination as it relies on the false notion that being trans is a (mental) illness. In fact, no gender identity is disordered.

The World Health Organisation (WHO) proposes to stop categorising gender identities as mental illnesses in the International Classification of Diseases (ICD-11). The World Professional Association for Transgender Health (WPATH) advises against any mandatory mental health treatment or diagnosis in legal gender recognition.

States should base legal gender recognition procedures solely on the self-determination of the person.

TGEU's Trans Rights Map marks states in red where a mental health diagnosis is required in gender recognition procedures. "Blue" states have established procedures and do not request a mental health diagnosis. "Brown" states do not offer any reliable procedures.

Forced Sterilisation

14 countries in Europe require sterility in legal gender recognition.

Many European states impose conditions before enabling a change of documents, including the requirement to be sterile. Legal text can explicitly or implicitly request forced sterilisation. Implicit law might require proof of medical gender reassignment, or mandatory medical expertise that is often only provided after genital surgery. Most gender recognition procedures are not transparent in this regard, and medical and legal aspects are intertwined.

In April 2017, the European Court of Human Rights ruled that requiring sterilisation in legal gender recognition violates human rights law. All Council of Europe member states must bring relevant procedures in line with this legal principle.

This year, the Index has five new categories indicating legal protection in the areas of:

- Self-determination in legal gender recognition
- Recognition of gender non-binary identities
- Discrimination in Healthcare
- Depathologisation of trans identities while ensuring stigma-free access to specific care
- Recognition of trans parenthood
